The Legal Occupier

July 2006

To the Legal Occupier,

OFFICIAL WARNING - THIS PROPERTY IS UNLICENSED

You are hereby notified that we have authorised officers from our Enforcement Division to visit your home and interview you under caution, as our records show there is still no TV Licence at this address and as yet we have received no response to previous communications from you.

Your statement will be taken in compliance with the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984*, and is the first step in our action to prosecute if we find evidence that you watch or record television without a valid licence.

I feel it is my duty to inform you that if found guilty, you could receive a maximum fine of £1000, and your name will be added to our National Enforcement Database. We take this offence very seriously and last month alone we caught 33,781 people.

To avoid an appearance in court before a magistrate I would strongly advise you to call 0870 241 7204 or buy a TV Licence online at www.tvlicensing.co.uk

Yours faithfully,

A handwritten signature in cursive script that reads 'J. Hales'.

John Hales
TV Licensing Enforcement Manager

Please see reverse for important TV Licensing information, including exclusions and how to pay.

A TV Licence currently costs £131.50 for colour and £44 for black and white.

*In Scotland, interviews and cautions are made in line with Scottish criminal law.

P.S. After 31st July 2006, you will no longer be able to pay for your TV Licence at the Post Office®. Please see overleaf for details about other ways to pay, including online and by phone.

How to pay

Just call 0870 241 7204 to pay by Direct Debit, debit card or credit card.

Visit www.tvlicensing.co.uk to pay by Direct Debit, debit card or credit card.

Go to any Post Office® branch and pay by cash, cheque or debit card.

More ways to pay are listed overleaf.
